Investigation turns up barrels, tannery waste

By PAUL HAYES

WILMINGTON- The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) resumed their investigation of a McDonald Road site on Monday.

A couple of hundred yards past the end of McDonald Road, in a forested area, the DEP has found 55 industrial waste drums, 15 of which still contained waste residue, according to DEP regional engineer Dick Chalpin.

In addition, the DEP found what they believe to be tannery waste, including leather scraps and hair, near the location of the discovered barrels, Chalpin said.

Tests indicate soil in the vicinity of the barrels is contaminated with industrial solvents, including Trichloroethylene and Chlorobenzene. Another 11 soil samples are currently being tested, and groundwater is being monitored for contaminants through three permanent tests wells, Chalpin said.

Field work will continue until later this month, to determine the limits of contamination of the sites soil and groundwater. The Private wells in Wilmington. Those interested should call DEP employee Paul Giddings at (978) 661-7713.

The DEP discovered the buried industrial waste drums through magnetometer tests - tests for buried metals - conducted two weeks ago. According to Chalpin, the barrels appear to have been buried sometime during the early 1970's.

Lawrence man held without bail for domestic assault

By PAUL HAYES

WILMINGTON- A Lawrence man arrested for brutally beating his wife was ordered held without bail, at Woburn District Court on Friday.

Jose Lind, 36, was sentenced to 90 days at Middlesex County Jail in Cambridge, after Judge James McInnis determined his release would pose a danger to his wife.

Lind will be tried on one count of domestic assault with intent to murder. Pre-trial motions are scheduled to begin on July 28 at 9 a.m.

Judge James McInnis rejected defense attorney John Osler's assertion that Lind's release posed no threat to his wife.

Three juveniles charged with armed robbery

By FRANK J. AMATO

WILMINGTON - Wilmington Police arrested three 13 year old juveniles on Tuesday, July 13th on charges of armed robbery.

The three allegedly robbed an ice cream truck of food, Wednesday, July 7th at the Silver Lake Beach.

They allegedly approached the truck twice. During the first approach, the trio apparently took some food, and then approached the vehicle a second time, allegedly demanding food this time. When the operator of the vehicle refused, one of the three allegedly pulled out a knife. The suspects took no money, just food.

Police indicated that the attendant of the ice cream truck knew the identity of two of the three suspects. All three were charged with armed robbery, and larceny under $250, and all were arraigned in Woburn District Court later in the day.

The names of the suspects are not being released because of their age.

D.A.R.E. Officer Chip Bruce and Inspector Pat King headed the investigation.

Princeton Properties

Too many buildings, not enough space

By PAUL HAYES

WILMINGTON- Developers and town officials remain at odds over a proposed Salem Street apartment complex.

Princeton Properties, of Lowell, presented revised plans for a 142-unit apartment complex to the Zoning Board of Appeals on Wednesday, July 7.

The developers intended for the plans to be more palatable to the town, than those rejected last year by the Board of Selectmen and the Housing Partnership.

However, Planning and Conservation director Lynn Duncan, who is also the chair of the Housing Partnership, continues to oppose the project, arguing that Princeton Properties' attempts to place 10 buildings on 15.5 acres of land has prevented the developer from creating adequate buffer zones and green space.

"We're not saying the project is too dense because of the number of buildings," Duncan said. "But because they can't make the number work and still provide adequate buffer zones."

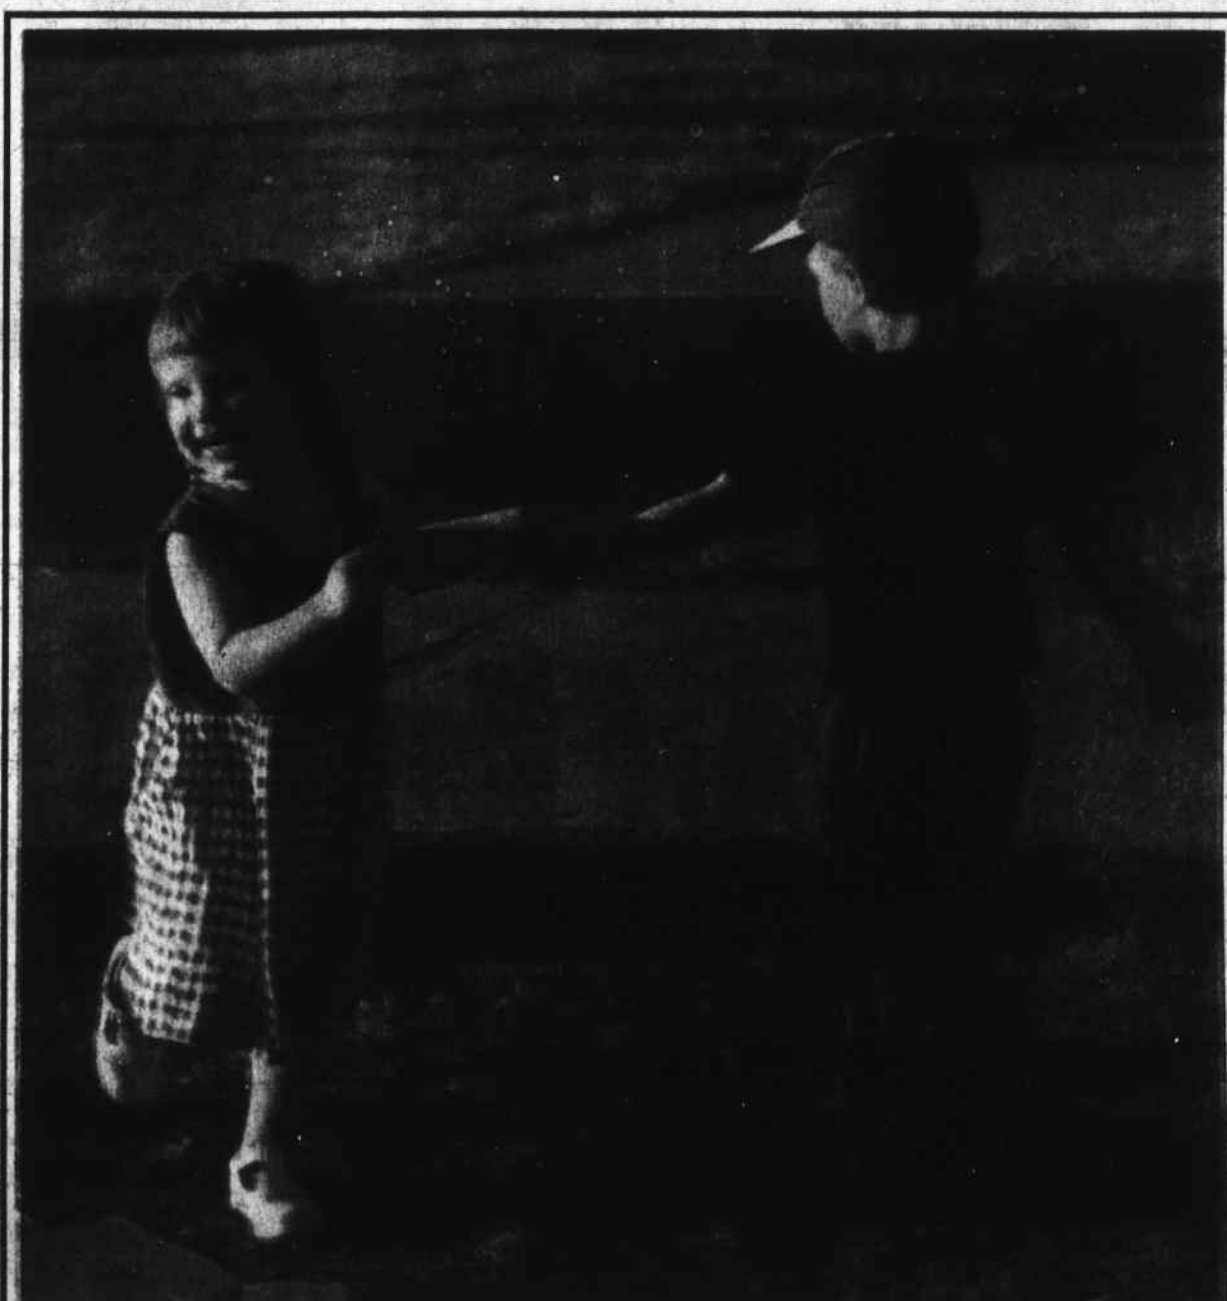

Duncan and the Housing Partnership want Princeton Properties to increase their proposed 20 to 30 foot-wide buffer zones to a width of 50 feet. The buffer zones are landscaped, non-buildable areas located between the apartment buildings and abutting residential districts.

Duncan and the Housing Partnership would also like Princeton Properties to locate the

YOUR TEEN'S SUMMER JOB

Youngsters starting summer jobs look forward to their paychecks, but many are shocked when they discover that a chunk has been taken out for taxes. There's a good chance they can boost that paycheck and not pay income-tax withholding.

It depends on how much they're making now and how much, if any, they made last year. If a child didn't owe any tax for 1998 and doesn't expect to make enough to owe tax in '99, no withholding is due. Write "exempt" on line 7 of the federal W-4 form.

Who will owe taxes? Children who are claimed as dependents on their parents' returns can earn as much as $4,300 a job before any federal tax is due. If they have "unearned" income—bank interest, perhaps, or a mutual fund distribution—of $250 or less, that together with their wages must be less than $4,300. But if unearned income tops $250 and the job will pay $700 or more, then withholding must be paid.

Year end report addresses:

New buildings, drugs, curriculum and at risk program

by CHRISTINE L. MCGRATH, Ph.D.
Superintendent of Schools

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Public Schools recently published the Year End report on the 1998-1999 Strategic Plan. The report outlines the work of the district in meeting the 1998-1999 goals of the School Department Strategic Plan. These goals were established by the Tewksbury School Committee and the Tewksbury Public School Administrative Council. The Year End Report was formally accepted by the School Committee on June 23, 1999.

The report reviews the work of the district in the area of Curriculum and Instruction. We have aligned our core curriculum with the Massachusetts Department of Education Curriculum Frameworks. We have reviewed the student test score performance on the new Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System and where necessary further revised our curriculum to improve student test score performance.

The report also details our efforts on behalf of those students who are at risk for a successful school experience. We continued to offer a Summer School Program for students who have not met the expectations of the Middle School Grade Eight Curriculum. We established New Start: an evening school program for Tewksbury Memorial High School Students who were about to drop out of school.

Our efforts in the area of Technology include the development of the platform for the new John F. Ryan Elementary School and an inventory of all software currently in use. We continue to provide training for the teachers and students in the expanded use of the Internet as a research tool.

The report outlines our work in the area of Community Involvement referencing the programs which were conducted for parents and students at Tewksbury Memorial High School to raise their awareness of the harmful effects of substance abuse. The series included the production of the Yellow Dress, Hip Hop Lives and a program sponsored by the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

A major section of the report is dedicated to the improvement of the physical plant. We have worked in concert with the New School Building Committee to bring the new John F. Ryan Elementary School on line. We have taken some initial steps toward the future renovation of the John W. Wynn Middle School. We have removed the Center School Annex and we have secured the funding for the repair and improvement of school parking lots.

These activities represent some of the many initiatives and accomplishments of the district during the 1998-1999 school year. Copies of the full report are available in the Office of the Superintendent at 139 Pleasant Street; 640-7800. Please contact the office to receive a copy. We look forward to sharing our work with you.

You think you're going to have a hard time getting around town this weekend? Think of the poor truck drivers from out of town!

One good, one bad

Ozone has two jobs

BOSTON - In early June, Massachusetts endured a period of exceptionally hot weather that sent ozone levels soaring. This occurs every summer, when weather patterns and the hot summer sun react with air pollutants to create ozone, the main ingredient in smog.

Due to the health risks associated with ground level ozone, the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) continually monitors air quality, and makes that information available to the public.

According to DEP Commissioner Lauren Liss, "Air quality in Massachusetts is pretty good most of the time, and it has been improving in recent years as government, industry and consumers work together to reduce air pollution. But on certain days, when ground level ozone are high, it's important for people to take some precautions."

"Ozone high in the atmosphere provides a shield from the sun's deadly ultraviolet radiation. But at ground level it is very harmful to breathe," said Howard Koh, M.D., M.P.H., Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. "Ground level ozone decreases lung function, making it particularly threatening to children, seniors, and people who suffer heart or lung disorders. People in these groups and their caretakers can limit health risks by paying attention to DEP air quality reports and limiting outdoor activity on 'bad air' days. It is estimated that one in eight Massachusetts residents can experience some adverse health effects when the air quality is poor."

Health effects from ground level ozone include: coughing, eye, nose and throat irritation; chest pain; decreased lung function; shortness of breath; increased susceptibility to respiratory infection; aggravation of asthma; and other respiratory ailments.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, 10 to 20 percent of all summertime respiratory-related hospital visits in the Northeast are due to ground level ozone pollution. Some of the economic costs of air pollution include high rates of school absenteeism, lost work time and wages, rising health insurance costs, lower work productivity, and millions of dollars spent in direct costs for hospital care, medication and treatment.

According to Liss, ground level ozone occurs in small amounts naturally, but the high levels found on summer days are a direct result of man-made air pollution. Cars, trucks, buses, industry and other sources emit pollutants that react with sunlight on hot days to create ground level ozone.

The DEP continually monitors air quality in Massachusetts and makes that information available to the public throughout the summer ozone season. Each day, the agency releases information about the current and following day's air quality.

This Daily Air Quality Report is available to Massachusetts residents through the toll-free Air Quality Hotline at 1-800-882-1497, and on the DEP Web site, www.state.ma.us/dep. Air quality is reported as being 'good,' 'moderate,' or 'unhealthy,' with recommendations for specific health precautions at each level.

"Even the 'moderate' level of air quality can seriously affect children and people with respiratory disorders, and those people should limit any strenuous outdoor activity, especially during the afternoon and evening hours when ozone levels are highest," said Frank J. Twarog, M.D., Ph.D., President of the New England Chapter of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America.

"As ozone reaches 'unhealthy' levels, the health risks and number of people affected increases dramatically," said Dr. Twarog, a Brookline based allergist. "People with heart or lung disease especially should remain indoors as much as possible and pay close attention to respiratory symptoms such as coughing, throat irritations, chest pain, or shortness of breath, and consider calling their doctor."

DEP recommends that everyone limit strenuous outdoor activity when air quality is deemed 'unhealthy,' as different people can have different reactions to the respiratory stress.

"Parents should take special precautions with children," advises Dr. Twarog. "Children are more apt to engage in strenuous outdoor activity on the hot, smoggy days. Seniors, as well, should take special care, as the body loses some of its respiratory defense mechanisms with age." For more information about ground level ozone and the Daily Air Quality Report, visit the DEP Web site at www.state.ma.us/dep, or call 1-800-882-1497.

On keeping calm, cool and clean

By PAUL HAYES

I am not yet old enough, or burdened with a medical condition, that permits me to consider the hot, muggy summer air a health risk.

However, there are several people out there who are.

I remember that as I squeezed windows in an apartment complex at a miserable summer job several years ago, an old man on his way to somewhere commented to me that the heat really took it's toll on him.

"I remember when I could run in this weather," he said. "Not anymore."

Generally, the advice for people that have a hard time handling the heat is simply: keep cool. Stay in air conditioned rooms, lay in front of fans, drink plenty of water, take a swim in Silver Lake and don't exert your self.

However, a family I stayed with in Memphis had a different idea.

Their advice for beating the heat was to drink a hot cup of tea, or some other hot beverage. They argued that a cold beverage only intensified the temperature difference between your body and the air around you.

This would cause you to sweat more, feel hotter, and make the heat even more oppressive.

But drinking a hot beverage would decrease the temperature difference between your body and the air around you, thus causing you to sweat less and feel cooler.

I haven't tried it yet, but let me know if it works for you.

In any event, hot muggy air is a beatable problem, but smog, and air pollution are not.

In the past year air pollution has been a grave concern to Town Crier subscribers.

In Wilmington, a paint smell has wafted from 128 Collision Center onto the property of Brand Avenue residents, including Tracy Peterson, John MacNeill and the couple's children Lucas and Zachary. Fearing that the paint smell affected their family, the couple have waged a campaign to clear the air in the neighborhood.

In Tewksbury, a family with severe fish allergies was confronted with the Weatherlane seafood restaurant moving in next door. Concerned that they would be exposed to airborne particles from cooking fish, that could possibly trigger their allergies, the family made several emotional appearances before the town boards to object the restaurant's move.

Eventually the family sold their home and left the area.

In both towns, proposals by California Products to relocate their manufacturing and business headquarters - first to Burlington Avenue in Wilmington, now to Dascomb Road on the Tewksbury/Andover line - have concerned residents.

The fear that the paint company could emit several thousand pounds of airborne pollutants has had residents, town and state officials and environmental activists up in arms. Although there is no proof that California Products poses a threat to neighbors and the environment, or even emits anything harmful from their exhaust stacks, the company remains a controversial tenant in both communities.

However, residents should not ignore the everyday air hazards, and should take steps to protect themselves.

Radon tests, exhaust and engine repairs, smoking cessation, bagging rather than burning clippings and leaves, and using public transportation are all steps that can be taken to ensure our air is clean, or to make the air we breath cleaner.

West Intermediate school cannot thank WCTV enough

Dear Editor:

The West Intermediate School is very thankful to WCTV for its recent donation.

WCTV has been a long time supporter of the West Intermediate School's video program. Over the past two years they have donated a video player, video recorder, a sound mixer and a controller to allow the students to edit the videos they take at school. With the latest donation of a titlamer we will now be able to add credits and label the speakers on the screen.

All of the staff and students at the West Intermediate school cannot thank WCTV enough for their continuing support.

MBTA is giving Wilmington a new look

Dear Editor:

My brother Peter Enos came to this town in 1942. He is now deceased. He loved the town of Wilmington and quickly became a "townie." My brother always had the best interests for this town, but people felt his opinions were never valid. When he would discuss the quality of the water, the past selectmen wouldn't listen. I would often hear him say that we need to think about the future people of Wilmington. As you can see some things that he would discuss at town meetings have now come to light. Now the town has a new water treatment plant.

I am also a townie, having moved to Wilmington in 1962. I have seen many changes in the town since then. I can still remember when the Town of Wilmington was nothing but farmland with acres of open fields. Soon many acres of land became new developments for Wilmington to grow into the future. I know that many of the decisions that have been made in the past have become back to haunt us.

We now have a great opportunity to make down town a place of the future. I feel that the MBTA is giving Wilmington a new look into the new millennium. With proper planning and landscaping it will beautify the town area. Gentlemen, let's work together as a team to improve our town.

Sincerely,
America M. Enos

MASSPIRG calls "Foul!" on air quality

BOSTON - According to a report released recently by the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG), Massachusetts air contains toxic chemicals at concentrations up to 80 times higher than levels considered safe by state and public health officials. Many of these compounds are carcinogens and are known or suspected to be responsible for developmental, reproduction or nervous system disorders. Motor vehicle tailpipes are the single biggest contributor to toxic chemicals in our air, being responsible for 40 to 70 percent principal toxic chemicals in the air we breathe.

Motor vehicles account for 42 percent of the VOC emissions in Massachusetts. The report focuses on four pollutants in particular - benzene, 1,3 butadiene, formaldehyde and acrolein - all of which have serious adverse effects on human health, including neurological disorders, birth defects, reproductive disorders, and respiratory diseases. All four also come primarily from mobile sources.

Some key findings in the report include:

*All 14 counties in MA have concentrations of these key pollutants at levels above what state environmental officials consider safe.

*Concentrations of benzene, a known human carcinogen, are up to 18.6 times higher than the safe limit in some counties, with Bristol County, Suffolk County and Hampden County reporting the highest levels. Motor vehicles account for a total of 45 percent of the benzene emissions in the country.

*1,3 butadiene concentrations, also a known carcinogen and neurotoxin, exceed the safe limit by up to 80 times in some counties. Berkshire County, Hampden County and Suffolk County had the three highest concentrations.

*Middlesex County was found to have the highest total tons of VOC emissions in Massachusetts. Mobile sources accounted for 28,121 tons of VOC emissions in Middlesex County, or 44 percent. Middlesex County is responsible for 22 percent of the VOC emissions in the state.

"I was really surprised about the findings in the report about Middlesex County. This just shows that we need to put more concentration on alternatives. The work MASSPIRG is doing to 'close the loophole' on our clean air standards is consistent with economic development in our country," said John Stasik, State Representative for Framingham.

The report recommends that the state move aggressively to take action to reduce tailpipe emissions by adopting the toughest emission requirements possible and extending those requirements to the growing number of SUVs and other large passenger cars.

California has recently reviewed and tightened its emission requirements to include SUVs and diesel vehicles. Public health and environmental advocates are urging Massachusetts to adopt the California standards, arguing that doing so would reduce toxic chemicals in motor vehicles by more than 60 percent.

"The EPA identified benzene, 1,3-butadiene and formaldehyde 15 years ago as posing serious threats to public health, yet no significant action has been taken to address their emissions. With a state cancer rate that exceeds the national average, we cannot allow this foot-dragging to continue," said Linda Sinchel of Clean Water Action.

"I strongly urge Governor Cellucci and the Legislature to take a strong stand to close the loophole on our clean air standards, especially with all the smog days that have introduced us to summer," said John Stasik.

Reading Municipal Light introduces new billing format

READING - Earlier this month, Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) customers began receiving a new, easier to read electric bill. According to RMLD Customer Service Manager, Laurie Cavagnaro, the bill has been redesigned with the help of computer hardware and software which was installed as part of the RMLD's Year 2000 compliance efforts.

Along with the new bill, residential, commercial and industrial customers will receive a newsletter which contains a sample bill in the new format, along with explanations for each item.

The redesigned RMLD bill allows customers to easily identify account information and summaries, meter readings and costs associated with electricity; i.e. customer, fuel and consumption charges; history; and credits.

Some charges previously "bundled" in other categories are now listed separately on the new bills. According to Ms. Cavagnaro, an administrative charge, now listed on the bill as a customer charge of $3.20, was part of the overall kilowatt hour costs on the previous bills. These are the costs associated with the daily operations of the RMLD; i.e. meter reading, maintaining the lines in the four member communities, among other administrative costs.

"This new format makes the monthly RMLD bill easier to read and understand," Ms. Cavagnaro said. "Not only will customers be able to note their current usage, they will be able to determine periods of high electric usage in the past 12 months, and make any changes to conserve electricity."

Further information about the new bills, or to find out how to save electricity in your home or business, call the RMLD at (781) 944-1340 and request a copy of "40 Easy Ways You Can Save Energy."

Senior security

Tarr gets $ for pilot community policing

BOSTON - Senator Bruce E. Tarr (R-Gloucester) announced that he has been successful in including funds for a pilot community policing program for seniors in Wilmington in the Senate version of the FY' 2000 state budget. The program, which was suggested by Robert DiPasquale, would provide for community policing efforts targeted specifically at working with seniors at the Deming Way Housing complex. Tarr said this concept has been the subject of discussion between DiPasquale and the Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally. "We all agreed that this could be a useful tool to enhance security for seniors," said Tarr. He added "I'm pleased that the Senate Ways and Means Committee also sees the value of this concept as a pilot for the state."

The Senate budget now moves on to a joint House/Senate conference committee to be reconciled with the House version of the budget approved this spring. Tarr said that he will seek the support of Representatives James Miceli (D-Wilmington) and Charles Murphy (D-Burlington) in lobbying the conference committee to retain the $15,000 in funding for the program in the final version of the budget.

WILMINGTON RESIDENT DEBBIE PHAUP (right) and her daughter Katelyn, participate in "Bring your Child to Work Day" at Mount Auburn Hospital in Cambridge. Phaup works in the laboratory at the hospital. Mount Auburn Hospital employees were invited to take their children to work so they could see their family members on the job and learn more about the health care field.

Tierney would allocate more to veteran's health care

WASHINGTON D.C. - In a recent meeting with Jack Lew, the Director of the Office Management and Budget (OMB), U.S. Rep. John Tierney (D-Salem) urged the Clinton administration to provide additional funds for the Office of Veterans Affairs. Tierney noted that while the President's budget provides more money than would be allocated for veterans under the Republicans' proposed spending plan, it is still not sufficient to provide properly for veterans' health care needs.

"I explained to Mr. Lew that after years of trying to get by with no new funding, the VA facilities in Bedford, Lynn, Haverhill and other areas of Massachusetts are increasingly hard pressed to keep up with the higher cost of medical care," said Congressman Tierney. "We are rapidly approaching the point where staff may have to be laid off, and part of the VA's operations curtailed unless the administration provides additional funding."

All across the country, the VA has been forced to delay or even deny health care services to veterans because of budgetary constraints. The lack of adequate funding has made it difficult to address the administration's stated priorities - the treatment of hepatitis C and emergency care.

Congressman Tierney also pointed out in his meeting with OMB Director Lew the delivery services at the Edith Nourse Rogers Memorial Veterans Hospital in Bedford has been made more difficult by the cost of maintaining a large and aging facility.

"Mr. Lew was receptive to what I had to say," said Congressman Tierney, "and I believe the seeds of a positive response were effectively planted."

Congressman Tierney played an instrumental role in persuading the VA to open community-based clinics for veterans in Lynn and Haverhill in the last two years. Last week at a veterans' health fair in Gloucester, 159 veterans joined the VA's health network and an additional 405 veterans registered their interest.

10th Anniversary Season

Lowell Summer Music Festival

LOWELL - Great entertainment is yours this summer in Lowell, when regionally and nationally known artists take the stage at the 10th Anniversary Season of the Lowell Summer Music Festival at Boarding House Park. Take your lawn chair or blanket, pack a picnic supper and enjoy contemporary folk, blues, big band, Irish, pops concert favorites, and lots more.

The 50 member Lowell Summer Concert Band plays a tribute to John Philip Sousa in a Sousa Spectacular on July 30. The program also includes music by Cole Porter and Andrew Lloyd Webber. Featured soloist is soprano Jean Danton.

Bill Kirchen and his band Too Much Fun celebrate an American musical tradition where country music draws upon blues, bluegrass and the Western swing of honky tonk. ## Princeton Properties buffer zones entirely on the apartment complex property. The current proposal has buffer zones along the Northwest border of the development that consist of Scaltrito Drive resident's land.

Too many buildings, not enough space

"I'm sure [Princeton Properties] would provide an adequate buffer zone if they had the land, but that would require the removal of buildings from the plans," Duncan said. "[If buildings were removed] they could probably have a good site plan."

Duncan and the Housing Partnership are also concerned that two-thirds of the proposed apartment complex would be impervious, built over lands, Duncan said.

According to Princeton Properties' plans, 204,224 square feet would be impervious, while 118,043 would be landscaped "green" space. Of the impervious land, 86,256 would consist of the building footprints, and 117,968 would consist of paved walkways and driveways.

"[Princeton Properties] landscape architect said people prefer greenery as opposed to asphalt," Duncan said. "But we don't see that reflected in their plans."

However, Duncan said Princeton Properties is handcuffed by a large section of wetlands, located at the rear of the proposed Salem Street location. Unlike other developments where wetlands are dispersed throughout a development, increasing green space and decreasing density, Princeton Properties is forced to place all their buildings in one central location at the front of the site, Duncan said.

Duncan said she is still hopeful that the town and Princeton Properties can negotiate a satisfactory plan.

In addition, questions also remain regarding the impact of traffic from the apartment complex. The Board of Appeals awaits a revised traffic study, after a previous study was ruled to be inaccurate.

The Board of Appeals meeting was the first time the proposal had been heard by a town board, since the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) gave site plan approval to Princeton Properties, and allowed the project to circumvent the Board of Selectmen's and the Housing Partnership's rejections.

The Board of Appeals has final review and approval over the project.

In the event the Board of Appeals rejects Princeton Properties' proposal, or the company feels the Board of Appeals approval contains overly stringent conditions, the company has the option to appeal the decision to the Housing Appeals Committee.

Further appeals would be filed with the Superior Court, and then the state Court of Appeals.

A search is being conducted to determine the party responsible for dumping the barrels and tannery waste. Several reports of who dumped the waste, and how it was dumped, need to be during a 1997 investigation of the area.

"Were they overlooked?" Rooney asked.

The previous investigation came after a young boy became ill while playing in the area past the dead end of McDonald Road, and has no connection to the current investigation.

Lawrence man held without bail for domestic assault

Osler painted a picture of Lind as a caring father of two children, ages 7 and 13, who had no criminal record, was a graduate of Northern Essex Community College, ran his own business restoring and renting out buildings, and served 19 years in the military and military reserves.

Based on this character evidence, Osler argued Lind would respect a court order to stay away from his wife.

But McInnis disagreed. "It is true he has no criminal record, and has served in the military," McInnis said. "But the discipline one would expect in the service has yielded to activity unbecoming [an enlisted man]."

Lind was arrested after he allegedly attacked his wife in front of a Wilmington home on Monday, June 28.

Wilmington Police Officer David Bradbury arrived at the scene after Lind's relative, a Wilmington resident, pulled Lind away from his wife. Bradbury then arrested Lind. Inspector Dave Sugrue was called in to process the crime scene, and Inspector John Bossi is continuing to investigate the case.

The beating left Lind's wife semi-conscious with injuries to her nose and face, four deep lacerations on her face, and a puncture wound on her head.

According to prosecuting attorney Polly Phillips, the marriage between Lind and his wife had been marked by domestic violence, and had rapidly deteriorated prior to Lind's arrest.

Lind's wife had filed for divorce from Lind in May, and had taken out a restraining order against Lind on June 7, six days prior to the beating, Phillips said.

According to Phillips, Lind also talked about the devil, recurring visions, and suicide.

Phillips said Lind's clean criminal record is misleading, and fails to show that Lind slapped, pushed and punched his wife repeatedly during their 14 year marriage.

"She didn't report [the abuse] to save their family, and his career," Phillips said.

Wilmington Senior Topics

WILMINGTON - The Buzzell Senior Center has just received information from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Executive Office to inform the seniors that Governor Cellucci and Lieutenant Governor Jane Swift unveiled a health insurance plan on July 6, 1999, to provide tens of thousands of Massachusetts seniors with unlimited prescription drug coverage until the federal government acts on its Medicare reform proposal.

The Cellucci-Swift plan, designed to help broker a deal between the state budget conferees, will ensure elders receive the prescription medication essential to leading a healthy and active life.

"Today, we are unveiling a transitional plan to guarantee that no elderly person in our Commonwealth gets caught short while long-term national solutions are being ironed out," said Cellucci. "The cost of pharmaceuticals is the fastest-growing portion of the health care industry, and more than half of these costs are currently being paid out-of-pocket by the elderly who need these drugs. Low income seniors, or seniors with extraordinary needs, are often left with the impossible choice of buying life-sustaining drugs or a bag of groceries."

"Governor Cellucci and I recognize that it is imperative for us to protect seniors against the potentially catastrophic costs of prescription drugs - costs that are growing four times faster than other health care expenditures," said Swift. "Our proposal offers a general prescription benefit to all seniors, provides protection for seniors who face sky rocketing costs and remains fiscally responsible."

The transitional program will enable all seniors to have access to the unlimited prescription drug coverage previously available in Massachusetts. Under Cellucci and Swift's insurance program, low-income seniors who earn at or below 150 percent of the federal poverty level will pay no premium and have a $750 deductible. Other elders will pay $49 a month and have a $1,500 deductible for their prescription needs. All senior citizens in the Commonwealth are eligible for the program.

Effective January 1, 2000, the approximately $50 million insurance benefit will be funded initially from the general fund until money from the historical $8 billion tobacco settlement becomes available. When those funds are received, the program will be paid for directly out of the tobacco settlement which Cellucci and Swift have pledged to commit entirely to health care. This is a transitional plan and will be phased out once the federal government reforms Medicare to provide drug coverage nationally.

The Cellucci-Swift proposal is expected to help the Legislature to come to an agreement on two marked different versions of senior drug bills passed by the House and Senate. The administration's plan effectively provides catastrophic benefits and protects the neediest seniors at a reasonable cost.

"The program that we have designed puts Massachusetts in the forefront of state programs aimed at assisting elders with catastrophic drug costs. This plan throws a life preserver to seniors who are besieged by high medication expenses," said Health and Human Services Secretary William O'Leary.

In October of 1998, a federal judge barred Massachusetts from enforcing its own law that guaranteed seniors the option of unlimited prescription drug coverage. Former Governor William Weld and Cellucci joined Senator Edward Kennedy to secure these drug benefits for Bay State seniors when they took on the federal government and defended the law in 1994. Since last fall's court ruling, 61,000 elders have lost HMO unlimited drug coverage and additional 116,000 are only receiving limited drug benefits. The Center will keep you up to date on this issue.

She was a member of the Friends of Tewksbury Hospital and a communicant of St. William's Church. Throughout her life she enjoyed being surrounded by her family.

She is survived by six daughters and five sons-in-law, Mrs. James (Mary Ellen) Cooper, Ms. Margaret Anne Trainor, Mrs. William (Patricia) Flynn, Mrs. William (Kathleen) Sharkey, Mrs. Barry (Terry) Sullivan, and Mrs. Keith (Nancy) Anderson, all of Tewksbury; 26 grandchildren, Mrs. David (Patty Jo) Hanley, Mrs. David

She was also the sister of the late John, Joseph, Gerard, Samuel, Margaret Anne Thompson, Ellen M. Ducray, Anna Land and Mary Puchi.

A funeral mass was celebrated Saturday, June 26, followed by burial in Tewksbury Cemetery. Arrangements were under the direction of the Tewksbury Funeral Home.

Memorials made to the Tewksbury Hospital Bus Fund, 365 East Street, Tewksbury, MA 01876 will be appreciated.

Stoneham Savings Bank acquires W.G. Leavitt Insurance company

and O'Neil Insurance in Stoneham

STONEHAM - Stoneham Savings Bank will acquire the two largest Stoneham insurance agencies, Robert F. O'Neil Insurance Agency, Inc. and W.G. Leavitt & Son Insurance Agency, Inc., making it one of the first community banks in the Boston area to take advantage of a 1998 state law that lets banks enter insurance.

W.G. Leavitt & Son has a large office in Wilmington. James R. Miceli, a veteran state representative for Wilmington and Tewksbury is vice president of the agency. His daughter, Christina Miceli, is manager of the Wilmington office.

The bank submitted its plans to Massachusetts banking and insurance regulators who must approve them for the acquisitions to become final. Bank officials hope to get the green light in 60 to 90 days.

The two agencies, which sell auto, home, life, health and business insurance, will be merged as Leavitt & O'Neil Insurance Agency, which will be Stoneham's largest property-casualty insurance agency.

"This is a perfect fit," said bank president Joseph C. Cioni. "These agencies are highly respected, and, like us, are active in the community. By joining, we create synergy and strengthen each other. This move assures the future of a community bank and a community insurance agency in the face of increasing consolidation and competition from big institutions."

Said Kim O'Neil, president of Robert F. O'Neil Insurance Agency: "This gives everyone the opportunity to serve the community better. By merging with the Leavitt Agency, we'll have a bigger staff and represent more insurance companies to give us more flexibility in the market."

The agencies will stay in their current offices throughout 1999, and the same staff will be available to serve customers. Sometime next year, the merged agency plans to move into a new Stoneham office. The agency will keep W.G. Leavitt's Wilmington office at 35 Lowell St. in the Colonial Park Mall.

O'Neil will become president of Leavitt & O'Neil Insurance Agency, a subsidiary of Stoneham Savings Bank. O'Neil is vice president of the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Agents and will become the group's president in 2001.

Donald W. Leavitt, president of W.G. Leavitt & Son Insurance Agency, will become a vice president of Leavitt & O'Neil. James R. Miceli, vice president, will also become a vice president of the merged agency.

Christina Miceli and Donald Leavitt's son, Scott Leavitt, assistant vice president and Stoneham office manager for W.G. Leavitt, will both be named vice presidents of the new agency.

Survey shows bank customers want more services.

The bank decided to explore selling insurance after it conducted an in-depth telephone survey of 400 customers and non-customers in 1996.

With passage of the 1998 law, the bank moved ahead. It chose the Leavitt and O'Neil agencies because they're among the largest and best managed agencies in Stoneham, according to Cioni.

To manage the purchase and merger, the bank hired a leading consultant, Gerald C. Vigneron of North Bridge Advisors, Inc. in Concord.

Cioni said entering insurance is the first major step for the bank toward serving the community with a full array of financial services.

While some big banks and mutual fund companies now offer a full gamut of services, it's "revolutionary" for a community bank to do so, Cioni said. But community banks need to broaden their offerings to stay competitive and meet public demand.

"Our mission is 'to be the community's first choice in financial services,'" he said. "The hands-on, personal touch is the key. With us, customers talk with people they know instead of an anonymous representative on an 800 number."

Additionally, Cioni said buying the insurance agencies made financial sense.

Founded in 1855, Stoneham Savings Bank is a mutual bank with $206 million of assets and $157 million of deposits. It has its main office and a branch office in Stoneham, plus a branch office at 601 Chickering Road in North Andover.

W.G. Leavitt & Son Insurance Agency, founded in 1938, sells a full line of insurance from its Stoneham and Wilmington offices.

Robert F. O'Neil Insurance Agency, founded in 1957, is a full service insurance agency in Stoneham.

Conservation commission

Plan of action discussed for many wetland violations

By CHARLOTTE COOPER

WILMINGTON - The Conservation Commission once again discussed a plan of action on several wetland violations, and held to their setback rules for a few other requests at their meeting Wednesday evening.

Wicks Circle: Four of the Commissioners attended a June 26th enforcement visit at the Wicks Circle violation site. It was agreed that the site will require major re-planting. The destruction of the wetlands extended at least twenty feet into the wetlands from the border.

The Commission requested John Keeley, Assistant Director of Planning and Conservation, compose and send a letter directing the property owner to consult a botanist and file a restoration plan to the Conservation Commission by September first.

"We need to do a follow up the second week of September," Lisa Brothers, Conservation Commission member said. It was agreed that a follow up visit will determine if the plan is followed. If no action is taken to restore the wetlands, the Commission will pursue legal action.

Dadant Drive: The violation that occurred on Dadant Drive will require a Request for Determination of Applicability, and the Commission will discuss whether further action is necessary beyond that filing at the next meeting.

McDonald Road: The Commission also ratified an emergency certification for Department of Environmental Protection work at the McDonald Road site. The work so far has been within the buffer zone and consisted of excavation of areas strongly suspected to contain buried drums and possible other toxic materials. The D.E.P. will be overseeing the contractor working at the site. (see separate story)

Henry L. Drive: The request for installation of an above ground pool on Henry L. Drive had a questionable impact on the surrounding wetlands, and was continued until the next meeting. "We need to [have] a site visit or see a plan [that] shows where the wetlands are [in relation to] where the pool will be," Ms. Brothers said. The plans as drawn don't show the specific distances from the wetlands to the pool location, making it difficult to determine if the wetland twenty-five foot setback requirement is met. Ms. Brothers suggested that an oval, rather than round, pool may accommodate the setback rule. "We need a better plan with distances," Richard Patterson, Conservation Commission Member said. The Commission agreed to a site visit for July tenth.

Main Street: New paving was requested for 510 Main St., but not enough information was provided. The Commission decided to issue a positive determination due to the proximity of the wetlands to the area to be paved. The lot size is 10, 337 square feet, but the back part is unpaved. Henry Chase and Brian Reardon came before the Commission with a request to pave the gravel portion, which will add one or two parking spaces. They wish to have a car rental business at the site.

"It was last used for a tuxedo [business]. We propose to repave [approximately] a twelve foot apron that is currently not paved," Chase said. In addition, he said that the septic system will need reconstruction and a portion of that paved area will be removed to accommodate the new system. "[We have an] emergency repair to the septic system. Two car spaces will be removed and a new septic will be installed. Greg Erickson, [the Board of Health Director], felt there would be no change in grading and that it would not affect the wetlands," Chase added.

A letter from the Town Engineer raised a few issues that need to be addressed before the new paving can begin, such as stormwater runoff. "[It is] a small scale market. I have offices in Reading, Woburn and Billerica and [have to] service Wilmington from all three. I can be flexible. I can do without the extra two spaces," Reardon said. He said that he could rearrange the cars from the other locations to supply Wilmington customers. Keeley suggested that a Notice of Intent should be filed to address wetland concerns.

Ballardvale Street:

377 Ballardvale was finally closed, which made Pagenet of Massachusetts very happy. The proposed shed meets the Commission's wetland setback rule, the D.E.P. blessed the proposal with a file number, and the revision block was clarified. Keeley indicated that although "the wetland delineation on the plan is still not right, the critical area closest to the proposed shed is correct. The Commission granted closure on the project.

Public Safety Building: The new Public Safety building, which will house the police and fire stations and parking lot, to be built on Adelaide Street is off and running. "Since only a small portion of this lot is within the buffer zone, the primary Conservation Commission concern is drainage. A new outlet structure will be located very close to the Bordered Vegetative Wetlands line at Rotary Pond," Keeley said, but he believes it was well engineered to reduce peak discharge rates from the existing conditions (for the 2, 10 and 100 year storms). "The sewage will go into a pumping station on Adelaide Drainage [from the roof] will discharge into a recharge area and then discharged into Rotary Pond. The [system] complies with D.E.P. recharging regulations. The parking area [runoff] will be collected in a catch basin," Bernie Paquin, representing Dana F. Perkins, Inc. engineering firm involved in the construction, said. He indicated that the runoff will be processed through a special treatment system. The job is presently out to bid and they are hoping to choose a candidate soon.

Easy to grow daylilies

Add color to your yard or garden

by DIANA ALLARD

Daylilies have become the most popular perennial in American gardens and with good reason! Daylily plants are hardy growers and reliable bloomers, adding color and interest to our gardens from early summer into the autumn.

Daylilies were discovered in Asia and taken to Europe by early explorers in the late 1400's or early 1500's and eventually brought to America by the settlers along with lilacs and peonies. Hybridizing the different species started in the 1700's but most modern cultivars have been created in the last 50 years with the last 25 years resulting in an amazing number of wonderful introductions. The American Hemerocallis Society now lists well over 40,000 registered daylilies.

The botanical name for the daylily, Hemerocallis, is derived from the Greek words hemera (a day) and kallos (beauty). I think most gardeners are well aware that the daylily blossom that opens in the morning will usually be a memory by the next morning.

Daylily plants aren't all the same, in fact, there is a wide range of sizes from small growers with leaves and scapes (flowering stems) reaching less than a foot tall to the very large plants with scapes towering over the foliage, stretching to a height of at least 3 feet. Flowers can be as tiny as one and a half inches across to over 6 inches in diameter depending on the cultivar.

Although there are some varieties with doubled flowers, the typical daylily flower is composed of six segments, a layer of three petals and another made up of three sepals. The petals are the inside ring with the sepals being the part that protects the bud with the petals enclosed. While the most simple color pattern is the same color on both petals and sepals, usually with a contrasting throat, in many cultivars the petals are a deeper color than the sepals or are a contrasting color, making a bicolor flower. A reverse bicolor has lighter colored petals with the sepals being the stronger color.

And speaking of color, the daylily palette is extraordinary! Orange shades range from dark, rich burnt orange to palest melon; yellows from bright gold to soft lemon; many shades of red are available from deep orangey red to rosy red to maroons so dark they almost look black; pinks range from peachy pinks to clear baby pink to bright raspberry; there are beautiful lavender to deepest grapey purples; and rich cream colors that are nearly white. In fact, the only colors not yet available are pure white and true blue, but be assured, the hybridizers are working very hard to produce these colors.

There are also thousands of daylilies that have a 'band' of a darker or contrasting color on the petals between the throat of the flower and the tip of each segment; if the daylily has an 'eye' that means the bloomers and produce flowers over a period of two to three weeks, a limited number, such as 'Stella de Oro' will start blooming in the early summer and continue right into the autumn. This ever-blooming trait has made 'Stella de Oro' extremely popular and, at this time, it is the not produce the number of flowers that you can expect if you provide adequate water during bud formation and flowering.

As with any garden plant there are pests to watch out for, spider mites and aphids can be hosed off, slugs can be trapped, if an infestation is damaging your plants excessively the local garden centers can recommend a chemical control method. If you use a pesticide please remember to read the label thoroughly and follow the directions carefully for your own safety and also to prevent doing more damage than good to your garden.

If you want your daylilies to look their best some grooming is necessary. Be sure to 'dead-head' (remove the dead flowers), called 'mush-mummies' by Tracy DiSabato-Aust in her wonderful book The Well-Tended Perennial Garden (Timber Press, 1998). I can't think of a better description! These spent blossoms can be very slippery underfoot so add them to your compost pile rather than letting them fall to the ground. Unless you are trying to hybridize a new plant, remove any seed pods which form, the plant's energy is better used to produce more flowers and healthy foliage rather than seeds.

As your clumps of daylilies enlarge you can divide them easily and either replant in different areas of your garden or swap with friends to acquire different varieties. Before you know it you might become a collector! Remember to add labels.

If you are interested in learning more about daylilies visit the local nurseries to see what's available. There are also dozens of mail order nurseries that specialize in daylilies, many can be found in the classified section of gardening magazines. Two very good books are The Gardener's Guide to Growing Daylilies by Diana Grenfell (Timber Press, 1998) and Daylilies-The Perfect Perennial by Lewis and Nancy Hill (Storey Communications, 1991). The American Hemerocallis Society is a great source of information and can be reached by writing to P.O. Box 10, Dexter, GA 31019, or by visiting their website at www.daylilies.org, at the website you will find links to many, many other daylily websites.

When I was a child the only daylilies I remember seeing were the bright orange common variety so often seen growing along the roadsides. Thanks to the work of enthusiastic and dedicated hybridizers daylilies are now available in a remarkable range of colors, sizes, and bloom times, adding interest and dazzling beauty to our gardens during the entire growing season. Enjoy!

second color is visible on both the petals and the sepals; a 'halo' means the second color is only faintly visible; and a 'watermark' means it is a lighter color than the rest of the flower. Some daylilies have a contrasting color on the 'rib' in the middle of the petals and sepals, and many have edges of a different color. Ruffled edges have become more common too, with the sepals usually having a smoother edge than the petals. Hybridizers have created some gorgeous new daylilies with equal ruffling on both petals and sepals. There are also some daylilies that have tiny crystals in the flower cells which reflect light giving the blossoms a 'diamond-dusted' or 'gold-dusted' shimmer, especially in bright sunlight.

While most varieties of daylilies are either early, mid, or late-season best selling daylily nationwide. 'Happy Returns' is another variety which is considered an ever-bloomer and was hybridized from 'Stella de Oro'. Not yet as common as its parent, 'Happy Returns' is lovely, with blossoms of soft yellow which, I feel, is an easier color to incorporate into your landscape.

Daylilies perform best if they are planted in a well-prepared garden with plenty of compost added to the soil and like a pH of 6.0 to 6.5, which is slightly acidic. Good drainage is essential. Full sun, or a minimum of six hours of sun per day, will produce the most flowers. The darker shades of red and purple will benefit from some shade during the hottest part of the day because the sun may bleach these colors. While daylily plants will tolerate drought conditions they will

Home run derby a blast

By DAVID FLYNN
Sports Correspondent

Mark McGwire has proven he can hit towering homeruns. There is no doubt about that. But, how would a group of 16-year-olds do in a homerun derby?

On Sunday, the first ever homerun derby took place at Rotary Park for the 22 Babe Ruth players of Wilmington Little League who played for and graduated from Wilmington Little League.

"This is the first year we had the 16-year-olds," said Wilmington Little League President Jim Buck. "So, we decided to have a ceremony for the kids."

Twelve players participated in the event and entertained a small group of fans with comical swings and misses, impressive homeruns, and trash talking between the hitters.

The winner of the derby was Scott Buck, the oldest son of Jim, who hit only three homeruns in the opening round and one more in the second. Still, four homeruns were enough to propel him into the finals.

Buck's most powerful opponent was the day's biggest slugger, Josh "the Macho Man" Howlett.

Howlett hit three homeruns in the first round and then erupted for nine in the second. He sent four balls to dead centerfield, five to left, and one to right. At one point, he hit four homeruns in a row. He had found the groove.

"You have to keep doing what you do when you hit that first one," said Howlett, commenting on the key to the homerun swing. "You just calm down and hit 'em."

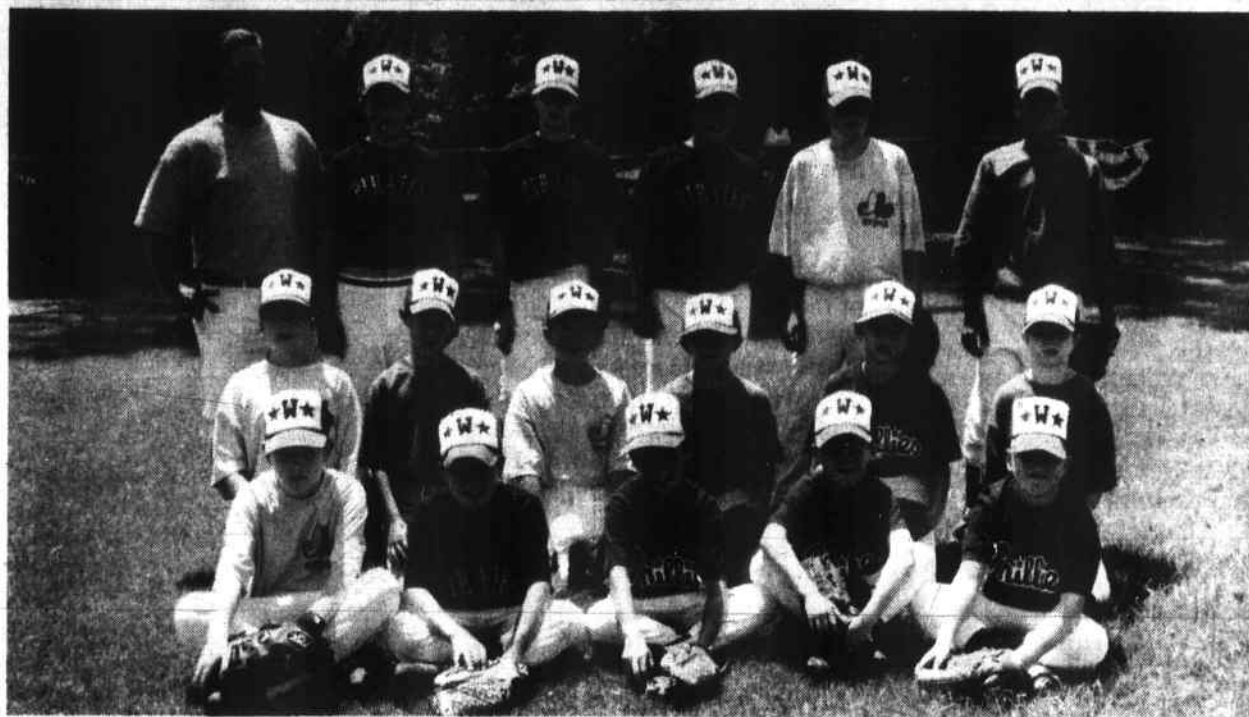

There were four batters who advanced to the finals. They were Howlett, Buck, Andrew Coyne (5 HRs), and David Trueira (9 HRs). Howlett was unable to repeat his second round performance, and along with Coyne and Trueira could muster only one homerun apiece.

Buck failed to go deep in his first two at bats. He then proceeded to smack two "longballs" in his next three at bats for the victory.

"It's not bad," said Buck, referring to his hard earned bragging rights. "But, I thought Trueira was going to win."

The 16-year-olds who were honored included: Buck, Joe Burns, Andrew Campbell, Chris Catena, Jeff Coughlin, Coyne, Jim Fennelly, Dave Hanley, Jason Hassey, Howlett, David Johnson, Mike Maloney, Ryan Marazi, Derek McLaren, Mike Montalto, Brian Roberts, David Silva, Jason Stark, Dan Tello, Trueira, Jason Youngclaus and Kristen Hudson.

"The homerun derby is something fun for the kids," said Jim Buck. "Hopefully, we will start a tradition."

West outslugs the East, 22-10

By DAVID FLYNN
Sports Correspondent

Great pitching is the key to winning ball games, right? If this is true, then the Minor League All-Star game held Sunday at Rotary Park between the East and West, at the very least proved otherwise, as the West out slugged the East enroute to a 22-10 victory.

"The kids played fundamentally strong," said West head coach Dan Bemis. "There were (a lot) of nerves at the beginning of the game."

"Then as the game wore on they got settled into their positions and then they played some really good baseball."

The West pulled away in the fifth and sixth innings as they scored 12 runs. Mark Manning, Jim Good, Mike Kavanaugh, Ryan Trulli and Rich Cummings all reached base on free passes in the fifth. Kavanaugh Trulli and Cummings would score on Mike Laffarello's triple with one out.

In the sixth, Kavanaugh delivered the big hit of the inning with a double to right centerfield scoring Good (walk), Brendan Sheehan (single), and Sean Fahey (double). The West was in full control.

The East battled through a tough six innings. Their most production

Majors eliminated in two games

By JAMIE POTE

The Wilmington Major League All-Star team went up against two Arlington teams and lost to both, to be eliminated from the District 13 All-Star double elimination tournament.

"We were fortunate to coach such a good group of kids," said head coach Brian Kane. "We had a lot of fun coaching them. We were just a little disappointed that we couldn't win a few games."

Last Wednesday night, Wilmington hosted Arlington National. The leads exchanged hands throughout the game, with Wilmington ahead 2-0 and 6-5, but in the end Arlington won 9-7 with the tying run at the plate for Wilmington.

"We left a lot of players on base," said Kane. "We just couldn't capitalize on our chances. I thought we had a chance to win the first game, but the second game (Arlington American) was a powerhouse."

In the first game, Kevin Velardo had two hits and drove in two teammates, while he also made a nice grab in left field. Also playing well were Kyle Brown who walked twice and scored twice, and Lou Insalaco who pitched a gutsy four plus innings.

On Friday night, Wilmington traveled to Arlington, this time to take on its American League squad. With one 11-year-old player described as a "monster" who hit 19 homeruns for Arlington, Wilmington just didn't have one of their better days against a team who was stacked. Playing well for Wilmington were Robbie Riccio who made a nice play at the hot corner, Velardo who did a solid job of relief pitching, while, Tim Sugrue, Matt Hogg and Insalaco all had big hits.

came in the bottom of the second as the offense came alive. Brian Little, Jason Jackson, Chris Fahey, Mike Stewart and Chris Holt started the rally with base on balls. They all came around to score, but the highlight came from Andrew Heck who singled to center field, knocking in Holt and Mark Walsh who reached on a fielders' choice.

The West had good pitching performances by Good, Derek Fitzpatrick, Mike Laffarello, Mark Manning, Trulli and Kavanaugh, while the East sent Kyle Nims, Chris Dancos, nine-year-old Mike Enwright, Andrew Heck, Nick Monent, Mike Stewart and Brian Spencer to the mound.

"The kids have a good time in a game like this," said East head coach Steve Brander. "These are the kids who are going to go on to play in the majors and hopefully high school."

Offense the name of the game for Farm All-Stars

By DAVID FLYNN
Sports Correspondent

The annual American vs National Farm League All-Stars game took place Sunday at Rotary Park. Both teams made some great defensive plays but, the offenses did the talking as the American League defeated the National 16-10.

The American League's winning run came in the bottom of the third as Trevor Cormier hit a RBI single scoring Matt Derian from third.

"This is a special time for the (kids)," said American All-Stars head coach George Robbins. "It was a (great) day."

It did not take long for the American League to get on the board.

In the bottom of the first, they exploded for three runs as Tim Cushing, Nick Robarge and Rob McIsaac each singled and scored on rbis by Mike Pizzotti, Joey Gore and Derian.

The American League All-Stars would add to their lead in the bottom of the second as they scored five more runs on four hits. In the inning, Matt Hope, Justin Collella, and Anthony Buonomo each picked up RBIs.

The National League struggled through five innings before coming alive in the sixth and scoring six. They led off the inning with three straight singles from Bob Donoghue, William Starrat and Jonathan Kincaid. Each player eventually came around to score.

The American All-Stars were led by McIsaac's three runs scored and one RBI. Also chipping in was Corey Tobin who went 2-for-2 with a pair of singles, one RBI, and a run scored.

"It's exciting," said McIsaac of the All-Star contest. "I wanted to get some big hits."

The National League was led by Louie Cimaglia who went 3-for-3 with two RBIs.

The All-Star game was an experience that many of the ball players won't soon forget. From the playing of the national anthem to the trophy ceremonies at the end of the game, win or lose, it was a memorable day.

"The (players) were selected because of the talent and skill they displayed during the season," said Robbins. "It was a good day to have some fun."

Three other All- Star teams to debut this week

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

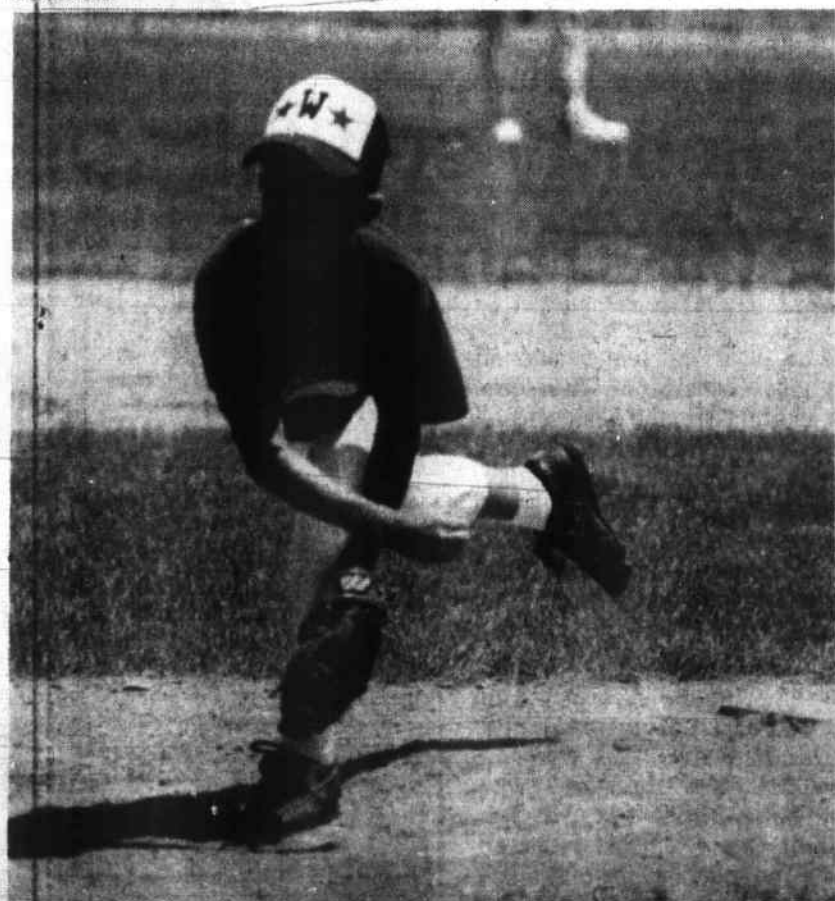

The Wilmington Junior and Senior Little League All-Star teams, as well as the 11-12 year-old softball All-Star team will debut their summer play starting this week.

The Wilmington Senior League baseball team will host Stoneham at 5:30 on Thursday night. Head coach Matt Callahan has an abundance of pitchers and catchers including Dave Trueira, Craig McLaren, Josh Howlett, Jim Fennelly, Scott Buck, Andy Coyne, while infielders include Andy Campbell, Dave Hanley, Brian Roberts, Dan Tello and Mike Montalto, and the outfielders consist of Jason Stark, Dave Aronofsky and Jason Riley.

Should the Seniors win they will host North Reading Saturday night at 5:00 pm at WHS. If they lose they will face the loser of North Reading/Stoneham in the three team District 13 bracket on Sunday at 5:00 p.m. at whoever loses the winner's bracket game.

Also that night will be the 11 and 12-year old softball team who'll be hosting the winner of Stoneham/Woburn American which was played on Tuesday night. The Thursday game will take place at Rotary Park and begin at 5:30. Should they win their first round game, they will play on Sunday, July 18 vs the winner of Woburn National/Wakefield, with the site to be determined. If they lose their first round game, they will play Saturday at 5:45 with the site, time and opponent to be announced.

Finally on Saturday night, the Junior Little League team will host North Reading Saturday night at 5:00 pm at WHS. Coached by Bob Whitfield, the team has a solid mix of 13s and 14s. The 14-year-olds include pitchers Billy Sinopoli, John McMahan and Dave Velardo, while, other players include James O'Neill, Greg Buck, Sean Layton and Pat Maloney among others. Some of the 13-year-olds include pitcher Sean Godding and outfielder Peter Oliveira.

Pote's Tewksbury All-Stars go up against Pros

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

On Tuesday night the first All-Star baseball game between the American League squad from Major League Baseball and the combined squad of the Tewksbury Little League All-Star teams took place at Fenway Park.

Tewksbury Manager Jamie Pote had some tough decisions selecting one player at each position from the six Tewksbury teams, however he feels pretty confident that his younger and inexperienced squad can give Nomar Garciaparra and the rest of Joe Torre's American League team a run for their money at the Friendly Confines of Fenway Park.

The Professionals kept the same line-up except they inserted Alex Rodriguez at second base as Roberto Alomar got hit with a huge spitball in the eye during batting practice on Monday night. As for Tewksbury, Pote is going with southpaw Mike Rocco on the hill, figuring that Garciaparra and Griffey are batting .235 and .207, respectively when left-handers throw them breaking balls and Rocco's over the top delivery when throwing the deuce could throw them off.

The rest of Pote's line-up has Dave Scibilia behind the plate, Brian O'Hara at first base, Matt Davis at second, Mike Bordonaro at shortstop and Ryan Carrigan moving back to his familiar position of third base.

In the outfield, the Tewksbury team is making history with not only the first female player to play in professional ball in left fielder Kelly Boyle, but it's the first brother-sister tandem to play in the outfield of an all-star game with Kelly's younger brother Jere in right field.

The last time family members (two brothers in this case) played the outfield together in an all-star game together was the Waner brothers, Paul and Lloyd for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Inbetween the two Boyle's in center field is the hard throwing and hard hitting Jason Veiga, who in spring training went 3-for-3 against the Pros starting pitcher Pedro Martinez. The DH for the Tewksbury team will be Bobby Diloranzo.

The reserves for Tewksbury include Bob Moulaison, Dave Buntin, Doug Heald, Chris Melo, Jason Chotkowski and Tom Lorette, while for the Pros they include David Cone, Mike Mussina, John Wetteland, B.J. Surhoff, Bernie Williams and Derek Jeter. The batting order for the Pros is as follows: Kenny Lofton in CF, Alex Rodriguez at 2B, Nomar Garciaparra at SS, Ken Griffey Jr.

in CF, Manny Ramirez in RF, Rafael Palmeiro as the DH, Cal Ripken at 3B, Jim Thome at 1B and Ivan Rodriguez as the catcher.

As for Tewksbury, their batting order is Matt Davis, Ryan Carrigan, Brian O'Hara, Jason Veiga, Dave Scibilia, Kelly Boyle, Mike Bordonaro, Bobby Diloranzo and Jere Boyle.

Throwing out the first pitch is Tony Ganchi, the Tewksbury coach who still hasn't changed his clothes since he won 30 straight games a few years ago and who still thinks that wearing the same ones will make this Tewksbury team come home as winners. The entire 35,000 fans watched and pinched their noses as Ganchi had to move up a few feet off the rubber but he still couldn't reach home plate, but was given a loud applause anyway.

And now we will turn to play-by-play announcers Sean McDonough and Chris Berman, who will be in fast forward speed.

(McDonough): "Well, Tewksbury went down in order in the top of the first as Davis grounded to short, Carrigan flied to left and all 35,000 people heard Ganchi yell 'Ryan what are you doing?', the famous words from Ganchi during every game that he coached Carrigan. O'Hara laced one to the left center gap, but Griffey made a sensational diving catch to end the inning."

"Rocco's emotions and high leg kick fooled both Lofton and Rodriguez as he got both of them on strikeouts, before Garciaparra grounded to O'Hara at first for a 1-2-3 inning."

"Now in the top of the second, Martinez didn't bring his thinking cap today as he threw a 95 mile per hour fastball down the middle that Jason Veiga drove off the left field wall for a stand-up double. Dave Scibilia sacrificed him to third with a nice bunt, and Kelly Boyle - after getting a 5-minute standing ovation for being the first female to play in a professional game - did have her thinking cap on with a sacrifice fly to right and Veiga just got under the tag of Ramirez from the strong throw from Ramirez in right to make it 1-0."

(Berman): "I'm impressed with the Tewksbury team, this could be a dandy of a game."

(McDonough): "Rocco got in a little jam in the bottom of the second, as he walked both Griffey and Ramirez, before Palmeiro beat out an infield hit to have bases loaded and no outs. Ripken, now 92 years old, stepped up to the plate and he grounded to Bordonaro at short, who flipped the ball to Davis at second for the start of the 6-4-3 double play, which scored Griffey to tie the game at one."

(Berman takes over the play-by-play for a few innings, still 1-1 now in the top of the fifth): "This has been a great pitcher's duel, as both Martinez and Rocco have struck out seven batters, giving up a run each. Bobby Diloranzo is leading off for Tewksbury and he smacks a single to left. Manager Pote goes to his bench and calls on Tom Lorette to pinch run. And on the first pitch, Lorette swipes second. Jere Boyle took a ball, and on the next pitch he stroked a curveball to center, but Griffey fielded it cleanly and threw a perfect throw to the plate to nail Lorette. Davis followed and he grounded into a double play and the threat ends, still tied at one."

"Now in the bottom of the fifth, the day is done for Rocco who was superb with his fastball, slow curve and his fist pumping certainly gave the fans something to cheer about. Dave Buntin is now called on to pitch and he struck out both Ivan Rodriguez and Lofton before facing Alex Rodriguez. Down in the count 3-0, Buntin threw a fastball down the pipe that Rodriguez sends deep to left, back, back, back, back and gone for a solo homerun making it 2-1 in favor of the Pros."

(McDonough): "Hey Chris, isn't that stupid home run call getting a little old now?" (Berman): Listen Baldy, don't tell me how to call a game, just because Daddy got you a job doesn't mean you are a better play announcer than I am."

(McDonough is back, thank God): "OK, all of the substitutes are in as we are in the top of the eighth still 2-1 Pros. Rocco and Buntin tossed seven strong innings for Tewksbury as Bob Moulaison is now warming up in the pen to take over. The Tewksbury bats have been quiet, as they have just four hits from Diloranzo, Jere Boyle, Kelly Boyle and pinch hitter Chris Melo. Now Scibilia leads off and he singles off David Cone."

"Pinch hitter Doug Heald is up and he when he makes contact he is pretty dangerous. After throwing two fastballs by Heald, Cone elected to throw a curveball that hung and Heald belted a two-run homer into the screen, to take the lead at 3-2."

"Moulaison walked the bases loaded in 12 pitches before striking out pinch hitters, Jeter, Williams and Surhoff on 9 pitches as the Pros left the bases loaded with no outs in the bottom of the seventh."

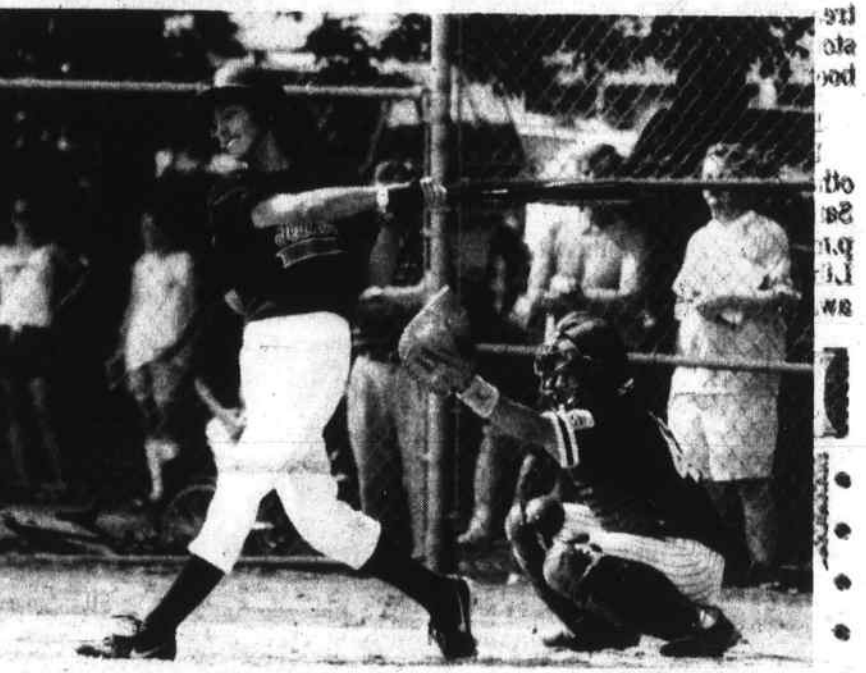

"Jason Chotkowski now leads off the eighth and he came on for O'Hara at first last inning. Chotkowski is only batting .280, but his instincts and desire to play and win makes him one of Pote's favorites. He grounded out to Ripken at third, before Veiga flied to right and Scibilia struck out."

"Now in the home half of the ninth, still 3-2 in favor of Tewksbury, Moulaison struck out both Thome and Rodriguez with the high cheese and the top of the order followed with one out away from winning. Lofton took a strike and was ahead 3-1, and he stroked a hard line drive back to Moulaison that bounced off his kneecap as Lofton beat out Carrigan's throw. The team trainers came out to check out Moulaison and he had to be carried off the field in pain."

"Now with all of the reserves in, Tewksbury loses the DH as Heald enters the game in left field, as Manager Pote has a gut feeling that Kelly Boyle, who has never pitched before can get Alex Rodriguez out, who homered earlier.

"Boyle had control problems at first walking Rodriguez on four pitches to set up first and second two outs for hometown favorite Nomar Garciaparra. Boyle, from the stretch, lofted an eephus pitch and Garciaparra's saliva was dripping from his mouth. He reared back and swung as hard as he could at the first pitch and sent a long fly ball out to right field. Jere Boyle takes two steps in before he realizes that the ball is going over his head. He moves quickly to his right near the Pesky Pole, and dives and makes a SENSATIONAL (as heard in the pre-game shows on WEEI) catch, and Tewksbury WINS, 3-2."

McDonough, who was late getting into the field after the game because he was fixing his hair, has both Kelly and Jere on the field for post game interviews, however, none of the questions were fired at them because their older sister, Molly, came running onto the field on National Television and grabbed McDonough's hairpiece as he went off in shame.

Fourth of July Book Sale raised over $2,000!

WILMINGTON - Many thanks to all who made the Second Annual Friends of the Library Book Sale a great success! It was lots of hard work and lots of fun. The Friends worked many hours at sorting, moving, advertising and setting up the library's conference room. Library staff processed hundreds of withdrawn books.

Townpeople donated books to be sold and in turn purchased others. Staff from public buildings cheerfully moved boxes of books stored in buildings around town. Eddie Whitney provided his truck for additional moving. The four day sale raised over $2,000 for the Friends. This money goes directly toward funding programs, materials and equipment for the library.

Harold Parker State Forest

Over 3,500 acres of recreation area that is near your home.

Part 1

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

At least 3,500 acres of forest land and lakes spread over four communities comprise one of the hidden secrets of the Middlesex East area.

Harold Parker State Forest contains 11 ponds, two of them spring fed and the rest man-made, which are part of the history of the former Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) camp. Assistant Superintendent Kevin Bent notes that the forest, which covers land in Andover, Middleton, North Andover and North Reading has 36 miles of trails.

"Our trail system is probably our biggest attraction," Bent claimed.

It is an attraction that keeps the woods drawing people year round as a place to go cross country skiing, horseback riding, mountain biking and other activities. Bent emphasized that no motorized vehicles, such as snow-mobles or dirt bikes are allowed in the forest.

"There is a lot of orienteering hikes," Bent said, "where people use compass points to find their way through the park."

About 10 years ago horses used to be available for rent. However, Bent notes that the cost of liability insurance has made that recreation go the way of the horse and buggy.

He notes that many people bring their own horses for trail riding purposes and they can be boarded at any one of the several privately owned barns in the area.

Fishing is another popular activity in the state forest. Bent notes that Berry Pond is a natural spring-fed body of water. State Forest Naturalist/Interpreter Barbara Buls added that Bear Pond is also spring-fed.

The others - Brackett Pond, cultural activity was responsible for the loss of a lot of trees in the forest.

"The land wasn't productive enough," Buls states, "So (the farmers) moved west."

However, the present forest has been growing since the mid 1800's and Buls describes it as in a "mid-successional phase. It has not yet climaxed."

She added that once again the forest suffered the travails of man-kind as loggers went in to cut down the white pines for sale to the mills in Lawrence as "box stock."

Buls said, "As a result of the farming, as you hike through the woods you will see a lot of stone walls."

Bent describes the forest growth as mostly oaks and white pines. However, both Bent and Buls noted the five or six areas of red pines that were left by the CCC workers.

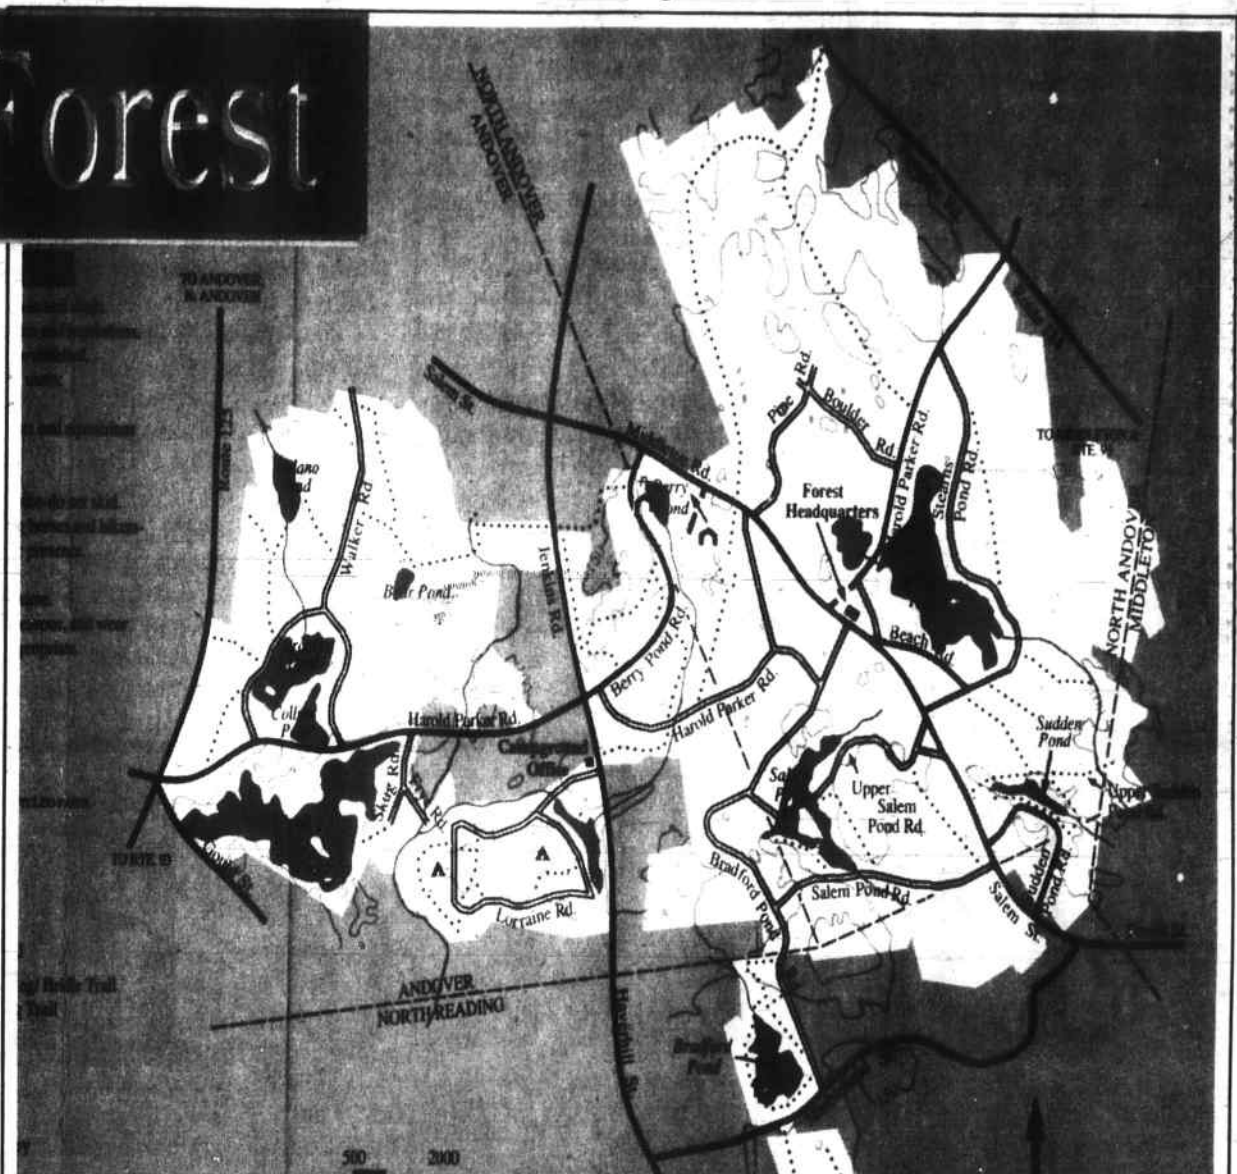

They have not been able to ascertain, as yet, why the red pines were planted. Buls notes that the tree is indigenous to areas to the north of us, such as Canada.

According to a leaflet distributed by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management, which operates all of the state forests, "There is evidence that the Pentacook

Collins Pond, Delano Pond, Field Pond, Salem Pond, Stearns Pond, and Sudden Pond - were created by the Conservation Corps when they started their work on the site in 1933. The forest has a long history which, according to Buls, goes back to about 1650, when the land was settled by English farmers.

According to the history Buls has been able to put together, the English farmed the land until some time around the 1840's. She notes that the agri-

THERE ARE PLENTY OF trails for hiking, horseback riding and mountain biking in the over 3,500 acres that make up the Harold Parker State Forest. Those are just the summer activities. In the winter some of the trails can be used for cross country skiing. However, at no time can the trails be used for dirt biking or other motorized off-road activities. This makes the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management run forest an ideal space for those people looking for peaceful, restful recreation that is close to home.

Indians inhabited the area before (the English settlers)."

Indian artifacts have been found at archeological sites in the forest. Much of the contents of those sites has been depleted by souvenir hunters.

ANTHONY MANCONI

I remember when Comare Caterina DellaCroce, (a neighbor and friend) enjoyed going mushroom picking every fall. She was very generous with her weekly harvest, sharing mushrooms of every size, shape and color with my family. My father was afraid to eat them until he tested them while cooking with a silver spoon or quarter. He would often boast of the most dependable test of all-telling my mother he wasn't hungry and for her to eat them first.

Folks, that will be the day when he could beat my Irish mother with her secret weapon. She would cook all the mushrooms in a POT with the silver quarter, spoon and the kitchen sink and, she would also cook store-bought mushrooms separately. At supper she would enjoy eating her private mushrooms BUT my father would wait an hour or two then eat, Comare Caterina's. So, my father was the TESTER and NOT my mother. "Mushrooms anyone" Not unless YOU eat them FIRST!

I asked Blackie Vega, wanna buy a Japanese Radio?" "Naw!"

he said. "I don't understand Japanese." Come to think of it, Blackie has a heap of trouble understanding English.

Now I know why most families have two cars. One to DRIVE while the other one is being fixed.

Kathy looks like she was poured into her evening dress BUT forgot to say, "WHEN."

Mr. Marino told me that he has MORE than ONE mailman. One who is supposed to place his mail in his mailbox and another who bring the mail that was delivered at the wrong address.

Irony of Ironies, my cousin Mario went on a Blind Date and it was his wife he was supposed to meet.

I welcome feed-back, even one like his Tony Zankowski told me he loves Woodchips (now the harpoon) "Any time I can't fall asleep, I start to read Woodchips and I doze off right-away."

Kathy shouted, "Hey Chipper aren't you coming to bed?" "I'm brushing my teeth." A half-hour later she asked, "what the heck is holding you up?" "I shouted back, "I'm brushing YOUR TEETH now!"

On my first day on the U.S.S. Matagora, I was asked, "What's Port?" I saluted and said, "I think it's a RED-WINE Sir."

Woodchips

From S-2

Wayne Belcher of WOBURN and Abbott Rowe of WINCHESTER.

Ponce deLeon looked for the Fountain of Youth in St. Augustine Florida. He was looking for it in the wrong place as any ballroom dancer will tell you. Folks, when it feels like the worlds falling in around you, go to where the Fountain of Youth really can be found and that of course is the Ballroom Dance Floor.

I remember when the men would SHAVE, SHOWER and put on their best suits and the women, God love them, would curl their hair, put on their best dresses step into their dancing shoes and men and Women would go DANCING. It might have been the, Wonderland, Kimball's Starlight, Totem Pole or the Commodore in Lowell. I had the dubious reputation of being a, "TOE DANCER." Many young and older women LIMPED of the dance floor after I stepped on their toes.

Sign on a farm fence in New Hampshire, "Notice, if you intend to cross this field, you better be able to do it in 10 seconds.

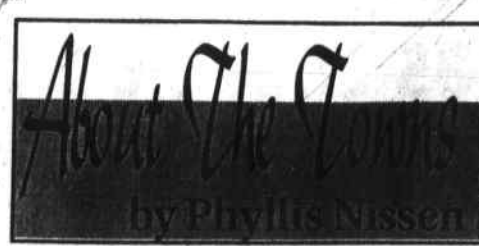

onds. The BULL can do it in 12 seconds."

A car dealer showed Bob Bonney, an new model car. He told Bob, "Press this yellow button and a Marilyn Monroe type blonde jumps in beside you. Press the red button and a lovely red-head will sit with you and the black button a Brunette will get in the car. After a while the dealer asked "Well, have you decided to buy the car?" "No," Bob replied, "how about just selling me the BUTTONS?"

The HEADSHRINKER told Blackie Vega, "The FIRST thing I want you to do is, STOP SMOKING!" "Why," Blackie asked, "is it bad for me?" "Who the heck cares," the doc shouted. "Look you idiot, you just burned a HOLE in my expensive Couch!"

My teacher told me to spell, Mississippi "The River or the STATE" I asked, "What in the world is the difference?" she asked, "Oh!" I replied, "The River is much longer," "Well then, SPELL the River and I hope you trip up and fall in the middle of it."

Folks, even in the fifth grade I would come up with nutty questions and answers like are common in Woodchips.

'Master Gardener' in Wilmington

"Diana Allard of Wilmington, recently graduated from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's Master Gardener Program," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"In the late 1960's and early 1970's, the interest in home gardening exploded. The Master Gardener Program was created in 1972 by Dr. David Gibby of the Cooperative Extension Service in the state of Washington to train volunteers to help answer the huge numbers of questions from amateur gardeners. The Program became so popular it is now active in 48 states and several Canadian provinces. Because of budget cuts, the MA Cooperative Extension Service found it necessary to discontinue the Master Gardener Program but in 1993 the Program was adopted from the Extension Service by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Since then, the MHS has graduated 30 to 40 new Master Gardeners annually.

"Master Gardeners work on a voluntary basis providing accurate up-to-date horticultural information to gardeners who have questions concerning all phases of gardening including vegetable and fruit growing, annual and perennial flower gardens, lawns, trees and shrubs, soil improvement and composting, soil testing, water conservation, house plants, and garden pests and diseases. Master Gardeners help set up and take down the New England Spring Flower Show and volunteer in the MHS Information Booth at the show. Master Gardeners also participate in plant clinics sponsored by the MHS. The MHS also maintains a speakers bureau that includes experienced Master Gardeners as well as MHS staff.

One of the most popular and widely used services is the MHS Garden Line staffed by Master Gardeners on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Consumers can call this free service at (781)235-2116 with their gardening questions...."

Green peace in Wakefield

"Weeks of yelling, screaming, complaining and cajoling by claustrophobic Wakefield residents were cathartically released this spring at a meeting of Vision 2000, a new watchdog group dedicated to preserving Wakefield's vanishing green space, at the Galvin Middle School auditorium," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Residents, town officials and politicians all aired their concerns and hopes for one common goal: the continual beautification of Wakefield as a community.

"Perhaps the most promising portion of the evening was saved for State Senator Richard Tisei (R-3rd Middlesex), who has undoubtedly been besieged by concerned calls from his Wakefield constituents. Tisei answered with a long range plan in the form of a proposed bill at the State House which could allow Wakefield to reclaim its green areas.

"We think that the state may have the best solution to enable the community to preserve its green areas," said Tisei. "These funds come in the form of land banks which give each individual community the choice of what to purchase and preserve...."

Ripe for recycling in Reading

"You couldn't bear to trash the old Apple, so you lugged it to the attic," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Or there's nothing wrong with the keyboard (except the 'e' key doesn't work), so you stashed it in the cellar. Or you thought you'd better keep the 286 as backup, but for two years it's just been hogging space in the den.

"You'd like to do something useful with your old computer system or parts, but what?"

"Now, thanks to a Reading business, you have an option right here in town: you can take your old computer system - complete or incomplete, working or nonworking - to Chris Rich at New England Computer Depot (580 Main St., Reading). He'll determine what whole systems can be reused, what parts can be disassembled and reused and what's beyond reuse. Then he'll make usable parts and systems available to local public schools and town departments. (What can't be reused will be responsibly disposed of through a computer recycling vendor such as Global Technologies.)

"Old computer systems or laptops or any parts - monitor, mouse, keyboard, speakers, printer - can be brought to New England Computer Depot Monday through Saturday. (It's best to call ahead - 781-942-1120 - to make sure storage space is available.) A minimum $3 donation is requested to cover handling and possible disposal of the items...."

In expressing his good wishes to Carolyn, a graduating senior, Dean Pfister said, "It would probably be inappropriate for me to say something like 'terrific' or 'wonderful' in reaction to two distinguished academic honors. # New patient discharge procedures change

Patients of Hallmark Health hospitals may start looking more like college students at a lecture, thanks to the recently introduced new discharge procedure. Under this policy, at admission every patient is presented with an educational packet, the key contents of which are a notepad and pencil.

Patients are encouraged to keep the pad on their night tables and write down any question they or their families have. Even if the patient later forgets the question, a record of it still exists. The patient can also use the pad to record information: drug regimens and physical therapy suggestions they receive from various caregivers.

In addition, the educational packet contains a number of handouts that explain many medical terms and procedures in layman's terms. During the patient's hospital stay, nurses supply all information regarding his or her condition, medication and treatments. Upon discharge, the patients receive additional written instructions concerning home care. "Previously, we handed out a 'patient care bag' at discharge," explains Chris Cameron, Hallmark Health Director of Case Management and Quality Improvement. "Everything they took home went into it: handouts, medication instructions, get-well cards. It was too easy for the important information to get put aside." The packet also includes information regarding patient's rights and appointment of a healthcare proxy.

The new policy addressed the 1997 Massachusetts Health Quality Partnership (MHQP) survey results that targeted discharge procedure as an area needing improvement in most of the 58 hospitals included in the study. "We felt that as a community hospital center, we ought to excel at patient education," Cameron says. Hallmark's hospitals include Melrose-Wakefield, Lawrence Memorial of Medford, Whidden Memorial of Everett and Malden Medical Center.

Hallmark Health responded to the survey findings by forming the Quality Improvement Team, whose task it was to develop and implement a procedure ensuring routine delivery of clear, comprehensible discharge information to patients and their families and emphasizing teamwork among all caregivers associated with a patient. In formulating the new policy the team solicited input from physicians, nurses, and social workers, surveying every hospital worker involved with patient discharge.

The original team, led by Marc Therrien, Director of Pharmacy, concentrated its efforts on discharges from Whidden Memorial Hospital. There they introduced the Post Hospital Patient Plan of Care, a one-page checklist covering the various steps a patient needs to take after discharge. A Hallmark Health system-wide team headed by Therese Eichel, System Quality Coordinator at the Whidden Memorial Campus, and Paula Throver, Site Manager for Continuing Care at the Lawrence Memorial Campus, expanded and adapted the Whidden plan, incorporating several ideas formulated by the original team. The result was the new discharge procedure implemented throughout the entire Hallmark Health system of hospitals earlier this month. Staff associated with patient education and discharge are currently receiving training about the new policy.

Right now, the discharge policy covers only inpatients, but Quality Improvement plan to extend the policy within the next two months to include emergency room admittees.

Volunteers are also playing an integral role in this process, tirelessly assembling information packets. "We couldn't have done it without them," says Cameron. "they've worked really hard and deserve a lot of credit." She estimates that the volunteers have been compiling packets at a rate of 1,000 per campus per month.

In July, nurses will begin making follow-up survey calls to patients to gauge the plan's success. Callers will ask questions similar to those used in the MHQP surveys in order to compare results more accurately. Initial feedback indicates that patients find the new educational packets extremely helpful.

Analog vs. digital hearing aids

In a world of rapid technological advances and improvements, items like personal computers are constantly improved with newer models. In addition to getting faster and better, pricing has become competitive, benefiting the consumer.

Technology has advanced the hearing aid industry as well. And like so many other high tech products, hearing aids have gotten smaller and smaller, even as the technology has improved. Today's hearing aids are so small they can be located inside the ear canal.

There are more options than ever before for the hearing impaired. Consumers often have questions about the difference between analog (traditional) hearing aids and the new digital hearing aids that have come on the market during the past two years.

Believe it or not, people have always used digital sound processing. The world's best sound processor is the brain. In normal hearing, sound waves are turned into digital electric impulses in the nerve cells. The brain analyzes the frequency, intensity and duration of these impulses, which results in what we perceive as sound.

Before consumers purchase a hearing aid, it is important to understand the differences between an analog versus a digital hearing aid. Starkey Laboratories' Phil Lyons says that selection of a hearing aid depends on how it is going to be used.

"If you only need it in certain situations, such as one-on-one conversations or watching TV, an analog hearing aid might work just fine. Those who are in high demand listening environments and need to hear clearly in noise, such as in a meeting or in a courtroom, are the best candidates for the advantages digital technology has to offer," said Lyons.

More than 28 million Americans suffer from hearing loss according to the Better Hearing Institute. As baby boomers continue to age, that number will grow even larger. Even the nation's first Boomer, President Clinton, was fitted for hearing aids last fall. Consumers should work with their hearing professional to choose the hearing aid that is right for them.

Starkey Labs has introduced a new digital hearing aid called Cetera. Utilizing digital technology in an innovative way, it restores the brain's ability to locate where a sound is coming from and to focus on one sound or voice even when in a noisy environment.

New cosmetic service

Loretta Andreottola, of 489 Summer Avenue in Reading, a Registered Nurse for 25 years and a Registered Electrologist and Laser Hair Removal Specialist, is expanding her practice with a new cosmetic procedure, called Micro-Dermabrasion or Power Peel.

Performed under the Medical Direction of dermatologist Richard J. Sharpe, MD, Loretta announces she is now offering a new technique for improving skin appearance.

Dr. Sharpe is a Harvard Trained Cosmetic Dermatologist. He is on the staff at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, and teaches dermatology at Harvard Medical School.

Used in Europe for over 10 years, Micro-Dermabrasion is now approved for use in the U.S. to treat conditions such as acne, fine lines, scarring, sun damage and age spots. This new procedure is a mini-peeling with very minimal risk of the hyperpigmentation associated with other peels.

Using a gently abrasive exfoliation technique, the skin is polished with minute aluminum oxide crystals that vacuum the surface of the skin to remove the accumulation of dead cells, leaving it with a fresh pink glow.

A treatment lasts under 30 minutes, and can be done on any part of the body. For best results, treatments are done every week or two for up to 12 sessions. The results are good after only one treatment, but are cumulative and, after several power peel treatments, results are similar to having a deep chemical peel or laser treatment.

micro abrasion acts to rejuvenate the solar damage. Skin tones radiate and skin becomes softer and more supple.

This treatment is a good option for people who cannot take the time off from work for recovery from a deeper chemical or laser peel. The procedure has little or no side effects and can be done in a lunch hour.

One of the advantages of Micro-dermabrasion is that it can be safely done on all skin types. On sun damaged skin, Loretta invites you to come in for a consultation on how she and Dr. Sharpe can help you have more beautiful and healthy looking skin.

Other procedures available include Botox injections for facial lines and furrows, collagen for fine lines, spider vein injection, fat injection and liposuction. For a free consultation please call 781-942-1717.

She will soon be transported to the Leagues' Animal Friends Summer Camp in North Falmouth to spend time with the young campers and other animals. "Jessica" has been at the Dedham shelter since early November 1998, so her upcoming summer vacation will be a welcome change of scenery for her!

Though "Jessica" is older, she would make a great companion horse and would be able to do occasional light riding. She is missing an eye, but is otherwise very healthy, alert and active.

"Jessica" will be spending her summer on the Cape, but if you are interested in adopting her as a companion horse, please call the league's Dedham branch at 781-326-0729.

Students enjoy breakfast, lunch and just desserts

Serial for breakfast in Lynnfield

"Shakespeare began writing when he was a teenager and became the world's most famous author," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"If the starting point of an author's career is in any way proportional to the success they will attain then several Pulitzer Prize winners should be coming out of the Huckleberry Hill School in the near future.... The second grade classes of Mrs. Tremblay and Nickerson hosted an 'author's breakfast' to showcase their students' writing talents."

"('The breakfast') is so the children can share the published pieces they have worked on all year," Tremblay said. "It's basically an expression of themselves."

"Dozens of parents wandered around the classrooms to inspect what the young patriarchy books comprised, and most were impressed, including the teachers."

"The breakfast is the culmination of the year's work for each student's writing. On each desk was a stack of books neatly typed and meticulously bound."

"It's fun to see the books because they're not what they consider real books," Nickerson said. "There's a whole lot to the process."

"Tremblay has been hosting the 'author's breakfast' since she began working at the school in 1988, and each year it is well attended."

"We had a great turnout," Tremblay said. "Every year it's a huge success."

Up close and public in Woburn

"Actual Mayor Robert Dever gave acting Mayor Mary Samuelson a close-up look at what the job entails during the 46th annual Student Government Day," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Would the bright and talented Woburn High School senior ever like to be mayor for real some day?"

"Not likely. 'I think it's too much stress for me,' she said, noting all the demands for decisions and issues needing attention."

"But Samuelson, the class valedictorian who is heading to Boston University in the fall, said overall the day went fine."

"She and the mayor toured the Industri-Plex site to see some of the progress going on there in its redevelopment, worked on the city budget, attended the Rotary luncheon at the Woburn Country Club, participated in a local government panel at the Wyman Elementary School and weren't yet done for the day...."

More than requested in Burlington

"The School Committee had six capital articles under consideration and ended up walking away with more money than had been requested," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"In the six items, a total of $297,000 had been sought, and due to an amendment to an article dealing with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), $362,000 was voted.

"As part of an ongoing program to bring school facilities in compliance with ADA requirements, the school board included a request for $55,000 on the warrant."

"The Capital Budget Committee, on a vote of 6-0, proposed an amendment for $120,000."

"Capital Budget Committee Chairman Frank Monaco said the money would be spent on items that would otherwise be deferred."

"You're only pushing things out," he said.

"Commenting on the town's financial situation, Monaco said of the added funding, 'It seems like it would fit.'"

"Robert Hogan, speaking in his role as disability access coordinator, said, 'We're already several years past the date where this should have been done by law.'"

"Precinct 6 Rep. Thomas Killilea said that while the money would be spent for a good purpose, he objected to a large increase in the article, particularly without backup information being provided."

"This is absolutely ridiculous," said Killilea, adding he would 'strongly recommend' against the amendment."

"School Committee Chairman Thomas F. Murphy Jr. said there was no backup for the additional amount because his board had only requested $55,000."

"However, he said the committee would have 'no objection whatsoever' to receiving the additional funds."

"The original $55,000 was designated as follows: $25,000 at Burlington High School; $10,000

WAKEFIELD NATIVE

GEOFF ERIKSEN has become only the fourth player in Salem State College history to be named a Division 3 All-American after completing a terrific junior season for the Vikings baseball team.

After batting just .298 in his 1998 sophomore season and 11 homers in his first two years combined, Erikson hit .465 this past Spring, with 54 runs batted in, 16 home runs and nine triples, the latter two both single-season records for the three-year starting shortstop. He also had 11 doubles and six stolen bases.

He was the unanimous MAS-CAC Player of the Year, a first team All-New England player, and was invited to participate in the annual New England College All-Star game at Dodd Stadium in Norwich, Connecticut. He was also awarded the Salem State President's Cup, given to the top overall male athlete for the academic year.

Parker State Forest

the Forest as a seasonal worker, is working on developing some of the historic sites within the boundaries. These include a blue soapstone quarry that was worked from about 1840 by Jenkins.

According to Buis, samples from the quarry can be seen in many cemeteries as curbstones in parts of Arlington and as part of the building facade on many buildings along Summer Street in Boston.

Another project that Buis is working on is a nature trail that will be handicapped accessible. The trail will be across from the Forest Headquarters on Beach Road.

She is presently working on a text so that the trail will be a self-guided tour.

Buis has a Masters in Natural History from the University of New Hampshire and is excited about the work she can do in the forest now that her hours have been extended.

Among the new programs she is working on is an interactive Nature Center, that is close to the campgrounds.

"I am trying to set up a nature center that is as kids interactive as possible," Buis said.

She has been successful so far. On the day we interviewed her, Shaun and Michael Pappalardo, 11 and nine respectively, stopped by for a visit.

set for Saturday, August 14 will be for people of all ages. The event is the second of what is hoped to be an annual event sponsored by the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife.

The Festival is free to all participants and will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"No (fishing) licenses are required," Buis said. "Everything is there that an angler will need including bait and tackle."

The bait is being provided by local bait shops and the Massachusetts Wildlife Angler Education Program, a group of volunteers, will be putting on demonstrations on how to cast for the big ones.

According to Buis, over 250 people showed up for the event, held at Sudden Pond last year.

Because of the long thin shape of the pond it is a favorite spot for fishing derbies. Bent noted that in the spring the Andover Sportsmen Club and the Lawrence Rod and Gun Club combine to stock Sudden Pond with several hundred pounds of trout for a Kid's Fishing Derby.

He notes that the trout is on the small side measuring about six to 12 inches long. However, bass fishing is plentiful in many of the ponds in the Forest. They run about 14 to 18 inches long.

Trout can also be found in Berry Pond which is restocked by the Department of Fisheries

They had ridden their bicycles several miles from not so near-by South Lawrence.

The brothers make the trip about six times per-summer.

"We come whenever there are programs," Shaun said.

On this particular day they were coming to help Buis set up a terrarium that would house some of the smaller mammals indigenous to the area, and would become a part of the Nature Center exhibits.

Michael said, "I like going fishing and catching turtles with nets."

Whatever, the activity it is clean (in a sense), safe and fun.

Although gasoline powered motors are not allowed on the trails or waters, electrically powered boats can be used on the ponds.

The Forest has two swimming areas, one at Stearn Pond and the other in the camp-ground area.

From burglars Safeguard your house

Burglars will not target a home if they believe someone is there. That is why burglars prey upon residences that look unoccupied. Police call these "targets of opportunity" homes virtually signaling themselves as ripe for burglary.

"Almost one-third of all burglaries committed during 1997 were made without forced entry," says Tony DeMarco, spokesperson for the Burglary Prevention Council (BPC), a nationwide non-profit organization dedicated to educating the public on crime prevention measures.

DeMarco knows how criminal think. A Chicago police officer, with more than 30 years of experience in the field, DeMarco has served on several different divisions ranging from Narcotics to Organized Crime.

"People need to know that burglaries can be prevented by paying attention to the simplest security measures combined with developing a greater alertness of your surroundings," said DeMarco.

10 Simple Steps to Safeguard Your Home

Burglary prevention Council recommend the following 10 steps for safeguarding your home against intruders.

- Close and lock all doors when leaving, even for short periods. This includes garage or connecting doors.
- Use automatic timers. Timers can be set to turn on and off lights, radios and televisions at varying times of the day.
- Illuminate the yard area. Darkness is a burglar's best friend.
- Lock up ladders, tools or lawn furniture. These items could be used by burglars to gain entry into the home.
- Trim trees and shrubs surrounding the home.
- Start a neighbor watch program.
- Use window and door alarms.
